

What is AdoptABook?

Begun in the fall of 1997, the AdoptABook Program sponsored by the History of Medicine Associates, provides a way for those interested in preserving the scarce and sometimes rare books housed in the History of Medicine Collection in the UAMS Library's Historical Research Center to help in a visible way. Over the last twelve years, over a third of the volumes originally selected for adoption have been adopted by individuals, groups, or colleges. Each of the conserved items will last much longer now that each has received some professional attention, which makes them more accessible to the HRC users. Books have been adopted in honor of various individuals, or in memory, or just because they were of interest to the person or the college. If you are interested in the AdoptABook program please contact Tim Nutt, Director, Historical Research Center, 501-686-6735, TGNutt@uams.edu
